The young person's parent said that she'd never seen him so comfortable... This is testament to the design and comfort of the chair and the sales and aftercare support provided by Alex throughout the process. The chair design is perfect for children and young people with complex medical and postural needs and I would recommend again.

Elsie's Story

Elsie is 89 and has been living with dementia for several years. She has always loved spending time with her family, reading, and listening to music in her bright, sunny lounge.

After a bout of pneumonia and a short stay in hospital, Elsie became increasingly frail and began spending most of her time in bed. As her mobility declined, her care team found it difficult to support her safely in and out of regular chairs. Concerns about falls, discomfort, and agitation meant that Elsie was no longer being sat out, and it was assumed that this was simply no longer possible.

The Challenge

Elsie's family wanted to help her regain some of the comfort and joy she'd lost by spending so much time in bed. They knew how important her sunny lounge was to her sense of calm and routine, but they needed a safe, supportive way for her to sit out again without causing discomfort or distress.

Finding the Right Solution

Elsie's family contacted CareFlex to see if there was a better option available. After a thorough assessment, the team recommended the Air Comfort Deluxe, a chair designed to provide exceptional comfort, safety, and pressure care for people with complex needs. It offered the right balance of support and reassurance for both Elsie and her caregivers.

...How the Air Comfort Deluxe Helped.

The Difference It Made

With the Air Comfort Deluxe, Elsie benefited from:

- The Airgonomic System, which gently redistributes pressure to help protect her skin after weeks of bed rest.
- Tilt-in-Space and Back Angle Recline features that allowed her to be positioned safely and gradually, reducing fatigue and sensory overstimulation.
- Drop-Down Armrests and a Robust Castor System that made transfers from her bed safe and smooth for her caregivers.

Life with the Air Comfort Deluxe

Elsie can now sit out each day in her favourite spot by the window, enjoying the sunlight and the view of her garden once more. She's more alert, less agitated, and more engaged in conversations with her family.

Her carers have noticed improvements in her posture, skin health, and overall wellbeing, and her family are delighted to see her comfortable, content, and connected to the home she loves.
